From Layman to Pocket Philosopher

19.04.14 - 29.06.14

The CCA Andratx is pleased to present the exhibition From Layman to Pocket Philosopher by danish artist, resident in Berlin, Simon Lindhardt (1982).

For his solo presentation at CCA Simon has chosen to show a modified version of one of his latest exhibitions, that was shown in Berlin in 2013.

From Layman to Pocket Philosopher is meant partly ironic, partly pessimistic, but mostly existentially, as the movements in life people do from one place to another. The title, however, implies that moving doesn't necessarily mean developing. Being a pocket philosopher does not preclude being a layman, and vice versa. In other words, the title suggests that life is a circuit and if you start as an amateur, you end up, at best, as a little less of an amateur.

The same characteristic can be given to the new paintings and sculptures of Simon Lindhardt, that all, to some degree, close in on themselves, or end up where they started. The question is; whether the circuit or repetitions in life are equal to a standstill?
